The Thestre, by agreement, will be leased to MearraHarwood and 1.0. (Mears. Harwood, Stewart, Hennings, and Coppin), the present lesses of the Melbourne Theatre Royal, who will edvise and superintend the stage and auditorium requirements. The term of lease is for rive Yaans, at the annual rental of three thousand pounds—equal to 10 per cent, upon the entire capital.

Mears. Harwood and Co. will also invest one thousand pounds in the orpital stock of the Company.

It is reason-bit to expect that the future leases of the whole property will become of an increased value, proportionate to the general prosperity of the community.

CONDITIONS.

Let.—The sum of five thousand pounds shall be vested in trust, and bearns, interest, as a security to the owner of the fand for the building and maintenance of the theatre.

2nd.—That are, surplus capital, after the completion of the building, shall be applied to a reserve or redemption fund, from which shall be drawn as required all the charges for rigiairs and maintenance. The special object of this fund is twofold. It is to provide a fund in addition to the amount it is expected will be covered by insurance, equal to that obtained in Victoria, and as it may be anticipated that no great diseaser will fall upon so well-constructed a building, it will eventually become a redemption fund.

The gradual accumulation of this fund, as carefully described in these tables, together with the £5000 with annual interest, deposited under trust, will, it is believed, ensure the return of the capital, at least, at the close of the lease, independent of the annual dividends of 10 per cent.

3rd.—At the first meeting of the shareholders, to take places we may be a served to the reserved of the characteristics.

The rest of the theatre under a second lesse from 1879, looking at the progress of the city, would no doubt be $4000 per annum. The hotels and restaurants slae higher in tite proportion.

It will thus be seen that, in addition to the expected annual dividend of 10 per cent., should no disaster fail upon the building, and to avoid which every care will be taken that may be possible, the "Reserve Fund" will accomplishe thus:—

Thu Grand Duke Alexis.—The European Mesit says, the Grand Duke Alexis is, like the Duke of Edinburgh, a sailor, having been destined for the navy from his infancy. His studies were directed by Admiral Possiet, a man distinguished for his great scientific attainments. The Grand Duke began at the lowest rung of the naval ladder, and has gone conscientiously through all the grades from a cadet upwards. The Grand Duke has encountered many ricessitudes during his adventurous earser: and there scientific attainments. The Grand Duke began at the lowest rung of the naval ladder, and has gone conscientiously through all the grades from a cadet upwards. The Grand Duke has encountered many vicisatious during his adventurous earser; and there is one chapter in his life which will be read with peculiar interest just now. In the month of September, 1868, while coasting in the Alexander Nepaki, off the coast of Jutland, he was shipwreaked, and it was on that occasion that the Grand Duke exhibited extraordinary pluck, and, what is more, angular abnegation of self and solicitude for others is a position of the gravest peril. The life-hoat was launched, and rode asfely through the heavy see and surf; but the cord which attached the boat to the ship became entangled, and it was found necessary to cut it, thus preventing the boat from returning to the vessel. Despite the tremendous see which was running, two poung officers came forward and volunteered to now the ship's barge schore. At first the coptain refused to give them permission to go, but the young men urged him to let them make the attempt to open communication with the whore, and at length they were allowed to start on their perilous errand. As, however, the captain had foreseen, the see proved too heavy for the frail boat; she was capsized by the breakers, which rolled in with fearful violence, and the galant officers were drowned. With the exception of four men, the boat's crew where the same fate. The ship struck at 2.30 a.m., and it was 1 p.m. ere communication with the shore was established. All the time the Grand Duke had displayed the greatest courage and calmness, and he showed true herotem by refusing to enbark in the first boat which put off from the shore to the assistance of the wrecked vessel. Nor would he get into the second boat, but "stuck to the ship" liberally until a third boat arrived, when, after some permission, he was induced to take a seat in it, and by that means gained the shore. Ah Cheen and Set Yung were indicted for having, at Guigong, on the 22ad December, 1873, wilfully, feloniously, and of malice aforethought, killed and murdered one Charley Ah Cheng. Prisoners pleased not guilty (through an interpreter): and Ah Cheen was defended by Mr. Pullcher (assigned as counsel by his Honor); Mr. Palley, instructed by Mr. Dunn, for Set Yung.

The Crown Prosecutor stated the case to the jury.

Constable Evana depended; I am a contable, stationed at Gulgong; I remember the end of last year; I went to a place occupied by a Chianaman mamed Ah Moy, in Herbert-street, on the night of the 22nd December; I entered the house, and saw a Chinaman with his head and shoulders out of the doorway; he had a wound in the left side, and appeared to be in a dying state; I also saw a Chinaman hamed Ah Mee; I asked who stabbed the man lying on the floor: Ah Mee answered (peninting to Ah Cheen,) "He did it;" I apprehended Charley Chong with intent to kill; he made no rejoy to the charge, but held up his heads to be hand culified. Ah Cheen had some blood on his mouth, and when I was handentling him he sawd "Yeas, I did it;" I saw Charley Chong, who was stabbed, lying dead in the same house on the 28rd. To Mr. Dalley. There were four or five Chinaman at Ah Moy's when I want there; I saw Charley Chong dead abut 4 o'clock next day.

Robert Hannan deposed: I was a detective in December;

There were four or five Chinaman at Ah Moy's whon I went there; I saw Charley Chong dead about 4 o'clock next day.

Robert Hannan deposed: I was a detective in December; I went to Ah Moy's home, and saw Ah Cheen in the custody of the lest witness; one of the Chinaman asid to Ah Cheen. "This is the man that did it; I saw him do it with his haife;" the knife produced in the one, and had fresh blood on it for about three inches from the point; Ah Cheen understood perfectly well what was said; he made no reply to the charge; I saw the mundered man next day and recognized him as the one who had been stabled on the migh betore. To Mr. Dalley: Ah Cheen was in the onstody of constable Evans when I came up; there were from eight to ten Chinasane there then I remained there for some time; Ah Mee and Jasamy Chin Goo were there all the time I was there; about three-quarters of an hour afterwards I went back to the place, and saw Set Yung, and he told me the latter had nothing to do with the stabling; the place of Ah Moy was a well-known gambling house; at the coroner's investigation Ah Cheen took the whole thame upon himself.

Sentor-sergeant O'Donnell deposed that on the night in question he went in search of Set Yung, that he arrested him and charged him with stabling a Chinaman, that he brought him into the presence of the wounded man oad that the latter said something which he did not understand; the wounded man loaded at Set Young, and said he knew him; he also said that Set Young told Ah Cheen to get a knife and stab him (Charley Chong).

Sergeant Keenan corroborated the evidence of the preceding witness.

Sergeant Keenan corroborated the svidence of the preceding winness.

Ah Mee was sworn by blowing out a candle, and proved that after a quarrel between Ah Cheen and Charley Chong, the former came behind the latter and atabbed him with a knife in the side; witness and Chin Goo caught Ah Cheen by the hands, and asked him for the knife, which belonged to Ah Moy; witness went in search of the sergeant, and did not see Charley Chong fall from the effects of the stab. Witness was questioned by Mr.
Plicher as to whether he could speak ar understand English.
and replied, "No, I don't understand English very well on the night of the stabbing.

Mr. Plicher continued his cross-examination of Ah Mee at some length, the result being that witness to some extent contradicted his former evidence, given at the Police Court.

His Honor strongly expressed his disapproval of having private counsel employed to assist the Orown in the proseoution, and he had known Attorney-Generals who would not telerate such a course of conduct. He thought the interests of justice would suffer rather than be promoted by it.

Jimmy Chin Goo was sworn, and corroborated the evidence given by Ah Mee.

Il Rwington: Was a medical man practising at Gulgong: he saw Charley Chong on the 22nd December 1set, and saw him dead afterwards; he had no doubt that death resulted from the stab inflicted.

Mr. Dalley addressed the jury for the defense.

The jury then, by his Honor's direction, returned a verdict of not guilty against Set Yung, who was then discharged.

Mr. Pilcher then addressed the jury in defense of the prioner Ah Cheen, severely criticiang the biassed nature of the evidence given by the Chinese wines es for the prosecution.

His Honor summed up, and the jury, after a brief consultation, returned a verdict of guilty. The Crown Prosecution prayed the judgment of the Court upon Ah Cheen.

His Honor then addressed the prisoner as follows, the interpreter repeating each sentence to the prisoner:—Ah Cheen, you have been charged with murder, and the jury, after a coreful investigation, have found you guilty, and I see no reason to doubt the propriety of their verdict. It sees no reason to doubt the propriety of their verdict. It sees no reason to doubt the propriety of their verdict. It sees no reason to doubt the propriety of their verdict. It sees no reason to doubt the propriety of their verdict. It sees no reason to the decessed had a quarrel, and a fight took place between you. It is probable that your passions were excited. It appears, however, that you were set on to fight, and the fight was terminated. Tou left the place after the light took place, and after being absent some time, you returned with a large knife conseiled about you. It appears that you addenly and traccherously took out the knife, and stabbed him in the side. The jury found you guity of murder, and I do not think it necessary, under your peculiar circumstances, to make any observations on the case. And the control of th of leases have been applied for and granted, but oving to fleases have been applied for and granted, but owing to the absence of any survey, the work done on them is by cotaparison very small. This will, however, I trast, shortly be remedied, as I am promised by the Surveyor-General that he will supply this want. Some of the most grounding reefs in this district would come under the same category, the ground having been marked and applied for, the application approved by the Executive Council, but for want of survey no leases issued. In consequence the ground is allowed to be idle, the labour conditions not taking effect until after the actual issue of the leases to the applicant. Whilst on this subject I would beg to point out the absor-lute necessity of immediate survey, the want of which has been greatly felt in this district. It not only retards the development of the gold-fields to an enormous extent, but in many instances creates an actual loss of revenue, in the intercent of the gold-fields, that some plan may be devised and regulations created under the new Mining Act to ensure the survey and issue of a lease within a reasonable time from the date of application. And I will here spain point suit (although alluded to in my report for 1872) the immense advantage of regulations of a simple character, to be caselly understood by the miners themselves, thereby obeviating much petty litigation and much consensure to the officers entrusted with their administration.

7. With regard to the alluvial workings in this district, there are few which can be properly so colled, most of the siluvial gold being now extracted from the old worked ground by ablusing, nevertheless, in this particular branch ground by ablusing method of the sales and the ground and though the sold rock for a distance of over 100 feet.

8. The cacitment created by the tin mines has now settled down, and although in many instances the ground selected has proved to be worthless, whilet in others, through minimal produces of the sales and although in many instances the ground ground by ablusting the past year.

8. The cacitment cre

10. To give a general idea of the state of mining matters in this district during the past year, I may observe that the total collections for that period amount in all to £4261 lbs.; and although, as compared with the collections for 1872, a decrease appears, still, looking at the collections for 1871, which amounted to £739 6s., it will be seen that there is a marked increase upon the collections of former years, excepting 1872, which may be considered as totally exceptional.

No. III.—Southern Gold Distract.

No. III.—Southern Gold Distract.

I have the honour to submit, for the information of the Honorable the Secretary for Landa, a report on the gold-fields of the Southern District for the past year. It is with considerable regret that I have to announce that the gold-fields, with one or two exceptions, in my district have not exhibited any signs of improvement during that period, but on the contrary, both as regards productiveness and population, have declined in importance in a very marked manner. I attribute this falling of, in a great measure, to the reaction and depression that followed the undue and uncalled for excitement—which indeed might properly be called a mains—that characterized the anxiety of the community generally to embark in mining speculations during the years 1871-2.

The singular and indiscriminate confidence that was reposed by the public in the representations of "promoters" of mining ventures, many of which were deceptions and frauds of the most impudent and glaring character, has now, as I anticipated in my last report, caused a complete panic, which has literally had the effect of paralysing the gold-mining industry, as far as it depended on legiturate panic, which has literally had the effect of paralysing the gold-mining industry, as far as it depended on legiturate speculation and the expenditure of capital. The reaction that has taken place is quite as extreme as the extraordinary excitement that proceeded it, and at the present moment all representations and efforts would be unavailing to restore confidence in this industry. It is to be hoped that before long the remembrance of the disappointments and losses sustained will have passed away, and give place to a more occurring and desirable state of things.

The decrease in the yield and population of the gold-fields has also in some degree been caused by the delay that has occurred in the issue of the leases to the applications are in suspense, or before the issue of the leases to commence active ope

MONDAY, APRIL 20, 1874.

THE SPEAKER has intimated that he will take another occasion of asking the Legislative Assembly to reconsider its determination to proceed with the Electoral Bill and other business after having passed the Appropriation Act. No one can reasonably blame the SPEAKER for taking a course which he is prepared to justify by Parliamentary practice or precedent. As Speaker he is bound to warn the Heuse of any danger it may seem to incur by deviation from either. He is accustomed, when in the chair, to vote for special reasons, applicable to his position, and not upon the merits of the case. If the Electoral Bill should be postponed by his interference, it will not be the action of a party, but in obedience to rules or forms devised for the freedom and protection of

Mr. Arnold's last speech in committee, however able, did not satisfactorily dispose of the question—which is the real question in issue—whether, by having passed the Appropriation Act, the Assembly has deprived itself of all power over the Executive Government. Mr. ARNOLD argued, as Mr. MACLEAY and Mr. Arnold argued, as Mr. Maclear and Mr. Butler had argued before, that inasmuch as the power of the Commons—that is of the Legislative Assembly—consists in, or depends upon, the "power of the purse," this power is gone whenever supply is granted. And, therefore, according to Mr. Arnold, it has been the ordinary practice not to pass the Appropriation Act finally until all the other business of the seasion is concluded, when the transfer of this Act from the SPEARER's hands to the Executive Government is symbolic of the surrender or cessation, for a limited though indeficite period, of the constitutional power of the Commons. Admitting the sake of argument, it does not appear to follow necessarily, and Mt. Arrondo has altogether failed to prove, that the power of the Commons passes from them with the Appropriation Act, or is involved in the retention of the Act, either in their hands, or in those of the Spraker. The symbolic performance may pass for what it is worth. There are many ceremonies of this sort, even in Parliament itself, which are resort, even in Fariament itself, which are re-tained for the sake of ald associations, or from Conservative feeling, which have entirely lost their significance, and subsided into Mumbo-Jumbo. But whatever doubts there may be clear that when the House ceases to sit, its clear that when the House ceases to sit, its power also ceases for the time being. No one supposes that the power is therefore abrogated or abolished. It is merely in abeyance. It cannot be directly exercised or enforced. In fact, the power of Parliament has been always from the earliest times, and by its very nature, intermittent. For this reason there must be always intervals during which the Ministry itself, which is receivable. reason there must be always intervals during which the Ministry itself, which is practically the creature of Parliament, is not directly subject to Parliamentary control. During a recess they may kick up their heels, and defy the representatives of the people, and the people themselves. They have the same immunity, even during adjournments from week to week, or from day to day. But whenever Parliament sits, and all the time it sits, its authority survives. Its legal authority depends upon no particular time, formality, or transaction, but simply upon its being in session. But Parliament sits ostensibly by the will and pleasure of the Executive Government, will and pleasure of the Executive Government, and virtually of Ministers. Why, then, does the Executive Government, or why do Ministers, ever bring into existence, or permit to exist for any length of time, a power superior to themselves? Not only because the law so ordains, but because Ministers are compelled ordains, but because aimsters are competied by the necessities of the public service, legisla-tion, and the like. These necessities give Parliament not only power, but the opportunity of exercising power over the Government. And so long as these necessities continue, so long nust Parliament sit, and more or less control the Government. Mr. Arnold puts the question in this form. Suppose, after the Appropriation Act has been passed, that the House were to come to an adverse vote against the Government. What would be the result? The going on with other business, than by being | states that there is no nearer resemblance begoing on with other business, than by being prorogued, after having passed the Appropriation Act with the intention of concluding the session? In either case the power of the House is temporarily taken from it, not by having passed the Appropriation Act but by ceasing to sit. But so long as the House site, all its legal and constitutional powers continue in force, and its direct and immediate power over the Executive Government remains. And granting the power of the Government to prorogue at any time, the House must continue to sit. at any time, the House must continue to sit. and consequently must preserve its power over the Executive Government, so long as any Act, or any business whatsoever, is considered neces-sary by the Government, to which the sanction of Parliament is indispensable. This may be the case with any other Act, or any other business than the Appropriation Act. It is the case at this moment with the Electoral Bill, and with other bills and business. The Government profess to consider it necessary to pass the klectoral Bill before the session closes. They profess the same with regard to other business. Mr. Arnold and other honorable members seem to have lost sight of the Loan Bill which, in this colony at least, has been generally considered quite as essential to the business of the session, and is quite as much a matter of supply, as the Appropriation Act itself. But the fact remains that, so long as the Government declare any business to be necessary, the Assembly can make use of that business, as a means of enforcing Ministerial responsibility, in the same way in which Mr. ARNOLD recommends the Appropriation Act to

But does the power of the Commons depend No doubt this was the hadder, as it were, by which the popular branch of the Legislature has climbed to power. But the height having been attained, although the ladder may be still occi attained, although the ladder may be still in reach it may be no longer required. Mr. Arnold admits that the privilege of refusing supply has not been exercised for about 200 years. But in these days the necessities of Government in regard to supply differ widely from what they were in early times—for instance, in the times of the Stuarts and the Tudors, between which and our own a parallel has been assumed. In those days Parliamentary grants had almost the character of personal grants to the sovereign. How they would be expended, when once authorised, was exceedingly doubtul, whether for the sovereign's personal pleasure or convenience, or for purposes of State. It was always difficult to estimate—within few thousand pounds or so, which were nearly equivalent to millions now-a-days—how much was really necessary for public purposes. These circumstances gave a popular force to the tenacity, or even penuriousness of the Commons upon questions of supply. But in these days the public servants must be paid The law would compel it in the long run. Public works of all sorts must be constructed—surworst of all sorts must be constructed—surveys made—postal and educational requirements provided for, All these things public opinion will insist upon. These circumstances practically limit the privilege of refusing supply. Another circumstance which goes far to diminish the significance of the Appropriation Act in these colonies is the the Appropriation Act in these colonies, is the common expedient of monthly votes of credit.
When two or three of these votes have been passed, or may be expected at the beginning of passed, or may be expected at the beginning of a year, parliamentary sanction for a more general appropriation is less necessary. In short, the power of the Commons has advanced from the symbolic to the practical. Having sprung from a single trunk it has since grown up and distributed itself into branches, in which form the power in question is more available for useful purposes than if it were still confined to the one original stem.

THE inquiry as to the literature of the Aus tralian aborigines, previously dealt with, is connected with the design of tracing the origin by descent or migration of that race, and belongs to the recently formed science of belongs to the recently-formed science of Anthropology. It is hardly possible to enter deeply into the views of that branch of study without coming in contact with opisions and doctrines that bring the student inte collision with time-bonoured and venerable dogmas of religion or the theories of historians. We have no wish or design, in further noticing the subject, to entangle the reader in a mesh of difficulties from which it would be hard to escape; but as it may be interesting to some to produce what may be called a basis of discussion respecting the to give a slight summary of some important facts in this branch of Anthropology; and this in accordance with the saying of the poet—
"the proper study of mankind is man."
Whilst, therefore, we have considered it not useless to have pointed out the hindrances. ess to have poin to the completion of Dr. BLEEK's design in to the completion of Dr. Blerk's design in addressing our Governor on the question, we now turn to another important topic, as to the variety or unity of the Australian tribes, so far as either view may be established or refuted by facts observed and recorded by persons worthy of credit.

recorded by persons worthy of credit,
So intense is the interest in such inquiries as these, that societies have been formed almost throughout the civilized world, and books have been written and published in various countries illustrating and defending the conclusions of philosophera, or disparaging and attempting to refute ancient historical declarations as to the unity of the human family as descended from one common parentage.
No doubt it is a question of very great importance, and on this as well as many others the learned are greatly divided.

Among the societies referred to is that established in Paris, which has a section or com-

Among the societies referred to is that esta-blished in Paris, which has a section or com-mittee whose business is with the inhabitants that dwell in the islands of the Pacific. This committee consisted in 1872 of four members, whose names are well known in the scientific world, viz., Dz Quaterrages, Bertillon, Hamy, and Topinard. The latter was the chairmen when an inquiry was called for upon the present subject, on the proposition of two other members, both going out to Australia, and one of whom is domiciled among us, viz., Dr. Jules Govard and the present Co sul of France at Sydney, M. Eugenz Simon. Dr. Paul Topinard is a physician of eminence and author of several medical works of value and success. Among them is a memoir prewhose names are well known in the scientific and author of several medical works of value and success. Among them is a memoir presented to his beciety, entitled Btude sur les l'ammaniens. Another of the same class, and which we desire to introduce to our readers, is Btude sur les Races Indigènes de l'Australie. This embraces the inquiry suggested by Dr. Blerk, but goes into details of widerscope than language or literature. It was his duty to draw up Instrucions for inquiry on the following question:—Whether the indigenous race is the same over the whole of the Australasian Continent, as the greater part french navigations and almost all the English pretend; or whether it is a multiple race, Government, Mr. Alwold set he result? The Government, Mr. Alwold sesumps, and his assumption is probably correct, would not resign, but simply advise a prorogation. It may be admitted, for the sake of argument, that this advice would be followed by the Governor. But in what worse position would the House be placed, by being prorogued, after having passed the Appropriation Act, with the intention of the Australasian Continent, as the greater part of French navigators and almost all the English propriation. Act, with the intention of the Australasian Continent, as the greater part of French navigators and almost all the English propriation. Act, with the intention of the Australasian Continent, as the greater part of French navigators and almost all the English propriation.

tween these Australian races than there is between the Norman and the Basque, or between the Fleming and the Provengal?

In the absence of distinct documents, which it is the object of these Instructions to call forth, he has searched for and collected his came under their separate notice, and in their own words.

It is a remarkable fact, that whilst in Great Britsin there appears a great indifference to Australian affairs, accompanies, as is only natural, with consummate ignorance or the part of those who ought to know better; on the Continent of Europe a most satisfactory and encouraging sympathy is evidenced respecting these southern colonies. Witness the inquiries of Dr. Blerk and other Germans; the historical memoirs of the Italian Bishop, RUDESINO SALVADO, and the essay under notice of Dr. TOPINARD. We have long known the earnest attention which the Government and savans of France have paid to all that concerns the development of this colony in particular, and the anxiety they ex-hibit to obtain a l kinds of information, which is turned to our own advantage as well as to that of their own country—information and advantage, of which many connected with the Legislature to which Dr. BLEEK appeals are almost as ignorant as the aborigines themselves, and to the collection of which for their own use they give neither nettonger per activenees. give neither patronage nor assistance.

Although the greater part of the Bishop of PORT VICTORIA'S work has reference to the establishment of the Catholic Church and Missions, in what he denominates New Nurcia; yet it gives a clear, though brief, history of each of our colonies up to 1851, including valuable details respecting the natural history and physical structure of Australia and the discovery of sical structure of Australia and the discovery of gold—as well as an able treatise on the Aborigines. Dr. Topinard, having the latter object altogether in view, with infinite research quotes nearly every publication extant, on the pecularities of the aboriginal natives, and proves that he comes to his inquiry with ample stores of arguments and facts for his guidance and decision; and it is worth considering whether an English version of his very clever monograph would not be a boon to numbers of our fellow countrymen. To analyze his statements in this part of our columns would be impossible; we must confine our notice of the work to a very brief, and, we fear, unsatisthe work to a very brief, and, we fear, unsatis-factory summary of results, leaving to private readers the amusing as well as suggestive iculars he has, with great skill and judgment, brought together.

So far as his sources are reliable (and he has dived into them all, collecting from each ex-plorer and traveller, who has committed plorer and traveller, who has committed his ideas to the Press, all the distinctive data which they offer), his conclusions are deserving of the respect which is due to honest and indefatigable industry; and if there be further evidence necessary to be sought for, such as that which Dr. BLEEK requires, still what Dr. Torinand has produced s not therefore to be ignored.

Mr. RIDLEY, we have already seen, considers that there are very many distinct languages, indicating to him distinct sections of the aborigines. The questions arise—Which is oldest? and how came they to dwell side by side — a circumstance also characteristic of Bushmen and Hottentots, and others in Africa

Dr. Topinand seems to have limited the number of tribes, and offers some explanation of the phenomenon presented to us. He reminds his readers that the hypothesis of certain English authors is that in consequence of some evidences of art, such as sculpture on the rocks (cammon homewor to all parts of the rocks (common, however, to all parts of the Continent) which are too much above the in-tellectual powers of the present aborigines, these are but the remnants of an earlier civilization. There is not, however, much in this solution of the difficulty, for the aborigines even yet scratch the rocks with outlines of fish and other objects, and there are no evidences of such architectural skill in Australia as are found in Java, or even in Easter Island TOPINARD thinks there may have been con quests and immigration in past times, and doubtless he is right. He alludes, also, to the traditional songe of the blacks—partly the literature of Dr. BLEEK—as leading not not with only to inferences as to connection with Polynesis, but with Papousia and other distant localities, and as proving such connection in times anterior to this. Bishop nection in times anterior to this. Bishop SALVADO and Captain GREY both mention a fact very well known to most persons who have had intercourse with our aborigines—that, rather than appear ignorant of anything relating to the origin of their so-called traditions, they always resort to ready invention to explain what they do not understand,—and this justifies the warning given in our former remarks on Saturday last. Immigration always brings new words into existence and new ideas among any given people, and no better illustration can be setted. given people, and no better illustration can be afforded than is presented by the synonym of puss for the cat, it may be possible, therefore, to obtain traces of origin from the tracing of words, but this method is not infallible, because it may deceive a critic who does not sift any possible number of transmutations in the progress of a word or tradition from one people ough many others, to another. The main result of Dr. Topinand's argu ment is his suggestion that there are in Australia, distinct physical and moral evidences of two distinct races with intermediates, and he at certain parts by intercommingling; that the dominant or stronger party may be found closely in connection with the weaker, and that in some places in the interior, and in others along the coast, the traces of the two are easily made out. But that at a far distant epoch the two out. But that at a far distant epoch the two main races met in conflict, and drove out the weaker. These primordial races are dis-tinguished by being both dolicephalous, i.e., having long heads, but, paradoxically enough, the less robust and feebler race are the longereaded of the two, but it is to the form of the skull and not to its contents, that the des skull and not to its contents, that the descrip-tion belongs. There is no doubt as to the fact, as shown by the journals of recent expeditions, that in almost immediate contact with each other, there exist civil and hospitable black-fellows and ferocious and warlike tribes; and this, too, in districts where the want or the supply of food does not appear sufficient to explain the difference of courage. Perhaps, we explain the dimerence of courage. Perhaps, we may hazard a conjecture, that the progress of religious civilization of our aboriginals will depend much on the original character of the race which comes in contact with missionary efforts. That all are not outcasts from the in efforts. That all are not outcasts from the in-fluence of the finer feelings of humanity, the writer of these remarks can attest from personal experience; and, perhaps, if ever the theories and hypotheses of anthropo-logists shall eventuate in certainties, this difference of races may lead to the better choice of subjects on which to try the success of the spicious education. But it is and to of the religious education. But it is sad to reflect how long such inquiries have been deferred, and how soon the subjects of experiments of Christian philanthropists will

As to relationship of the Australian races with any one given distinct country alone, we discard the notion, for whatever may have been the direction of the primitive immigration (by many supposed from north to souts, many supposed from north to souts, expanding laterally) we conceive that Polynesian, Melanesian, Papousian, Malayan, and even African inroads may have been made on the shores of Australia, and that it is quite possible that all these may have left traces of their action on the "remnants that are left" of pristine inhabitants, not originally indigenous to the soil, but themselves the subjects of migration.

Certain it is, that one curious fact exists, which has not been sufficiently noticed, viz., the exact conformity of the names of many localities in New South Wales with African names; whilst on the coast of Western Ausnames; whilst on the coast of Western Australia, nearest to Africa, the termination of words representing mountains and rivers and plains differs only between the "op" of secountry, and the "up" of the other.

Moreover, there is a physical resemblance between the aborigines of India, and some of our Australian tribes, which so struck a friend of ours who had in the course of his williars experience seen much of the former friend of ours who had in the course of his military experience seen much of the former, that on his meeting some of our negritos he immediately expressed his surprise at the likeness. In addition to such conditions, if we call to mind the difference in the hair, not wooly but curled or crisp, and the difference of con-plexion not so much black as brown and d copper-colour, and other personal character-istics, and then compare them with those of the natives of New Guinea, in which there are two or more races; or of the natives of New Caledonia, the New Hebrides, and New Zealand, we shall have plenty of work on which to exercise our judgment knowledge and reason, out of which exercise may arise much good, but in which there is great danger of many fatal errors hostile to the determination of the truth.

tion of the truth.

"The primordial negroid element of the Ausralian Continent which I have been compelled," says Dr. Topinard, "in the course of this work to separate from the other element under which it is disguised, should therefore be the aboriginal fautocthone)." He then asks this question—"Between the Papousians of New Guinea, the negritos of the Andamans, the Möis of Indo-China and Malacca, the Moundas of the Deccan, the Malagashes of Madagascar, and these Meianesian negroes. Madegascar, and these Melanesian negroes, what was the primitive relation?"

To lead to the solution of this, is indirectly the duty which Dr. BLEEK wishes to lay upon the Governor and Legislature of New South Wales; or, at any rate, has invited them to further by the influence of their authority.

Dr. BLEEK looks to Africa, as a connection; and if any argument can be gained from its consideration, he might have suggested, that the boomerang is depicted on the walls of African temples, and that the Hindoo soldiers of ABERCROMBIE'S army NAPOLEON in Egypt recognised also their own familiar emblems. Boshman's ancestors may then—like all other aborigines—and according to the most ancient history of the world must have had some connection with the primitive Australians; and PAUL of Tarsus, who was a philosopher as well as spostle, says wisely enough to he free-thinkers of the Areopagus, "God hath made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on all the face of earth."

It was not within the limits of Dr. Topy-NARD's range of inquiry to deal with this sentiment; but the inquiry itself will, if completed, centre therein.

The essay itself is deserving of great praise for its candour, single-mindedness, and perfect freedom from all prejudice; and of it the "Such is the summary of our knowledge on one of the summary of our knowledge on one of the savage peoples, who have most excited, and with justice, the curiosity of Europe. Such are the questions which belong Kurope. Such are the questions which belong to its investigation. It only remains, that with our good wishes we follow the two distinguished travellers," (viz., Dr. Govard and Mr. Consul Sinon,) "who, before they rushed off almost to the antipodes, have desired to afford us the opportunity of drawing up these Instructions.—Des faits, des faits, et toujours des faits; voila ce qui nous leur demandons."

SCULLERS' RACE.—A race in light skiffs, for £20, between Solomon and Sullivan, took place on Saturday afternoon, round the two islands, and resulted in easy victory for the former, who went away with the leaf, and was never afterwards headed. The steamer Herald, with a large number of the friends of the competitors, collowed the race.

GROWTH OF WHEAT.—Mr. G. H. Reid objects to the following statement in our summary issue:—
"Wheat, which once had possession of the greatest portion of the tilled land, in fast disappearing before crops better suited to the climate." With the figures before him, he would scarcely have objected to it, had the prefix preformed part of the word portion, as was intended, since the remark was intended to apply to the relative proportions of the several crops. We do not expect, under any circumstances, that wheat in this colony will hold the position it one did.—EDITOR.

VOLUNTEER ARTILLERY.—The Commandant's half-yearly inspection of Nos. 9, 10, and 11 Batteries V. Artillery Brigade took place on Baturday last, at Bewer Point. There was a good muster of the respective beteries—No. 9 being under the command of Captain Wells, No. 10 under Captain Macdonald, and Battery Sergestal-Major Twomey taking charge of Ko. 11, to which cops as commissioned officer has, as yet, been appointed. MEETING OF RATEPAYERS AT NORTH WILLOUGENY.—A rather numerously attended meeting of the retepsyers of North Willoughby was held on Saturday afternoon, in front of Mr. Bryson's residence, on the LanCove Road, for the purpose of taking into consideration the working of the majority of the Borough Council of North Willoughby when in Council. There was a preliminary difficulty, which occupied some time, as to who should preside over the meeting, some of those present being of opinion that the Mayor (Mr. Beat) ought, as a matter of constitutional right, to take the chair, while a decided majority of the meeting were evidently determined not to allow that gentleman to preside. The difficulty was at last solved by placing Mr. Seldon in the chair. The chairman commenced the proceedings by stating that is his opinion they ought to petition the Governor to dissolve the Council, appoint a collector to get in the rates, and a surveyor to see the money expeuded. Alderman Challis then addressed the meeting, and was continually interrupted during his speech, as indeed were all the other speakers.
He said they had met to protest sgainst the Mayor and two or three of the aldermen being allowed to borrow the sam of £200, because he believed it was unparalleded in the history of the colony that a mayor should give his casting vote six or seven times in one meeting, as had been the case in that Council recently. He complained that the regular monthly meetings had not been held, but that the Mayor had called special meetings instead, at times convenient to himself and supporters, but when his opponents could not attend.
Motions that he had himself placed on the business paper were not brought forward, while those of the Mayor and the special meetings in the proposed the Mayor did not receive due notice. When he was Mayor the devise of the horough were £133, and the assets £42, and he had used the assets and the Government

GOLD MEDAL FOR FLOUR.—We observe that in section 7, class 470, in the Exhibition catalogue, among several exhibits of flour, &c., the Society's medal (first prize), was awarded to Watson's, Brothers, of Young, for superfine flour, in competition with Waggs Waggs, Goulburn, Sydney, and South Australia. The same prize was awarded to them at the Exhibition last year, and on two coasions they have been awarded the gold medal of the Agricultural Sciety at Young, for excellence of flour.

SUDDEN DEATH—About 8 o'clock on last Sunday meraling, Mrs. Boyd, aged 79 years, was found dead in bed at her residence, in Lansdowne-street, off Crownstreet, Surry Hills. She was leat seen alive at midnight on Saturday, when she was selightly under the influence of liquor, to the excessive use of which she had been addicted She had generally been in the enjoyment of good health.

A REMARKABLE METEOR.—The Cudgegong sorrespondent of the Westers Post writes:—On Monday 13th instant, a most remarkable meteor was seen in the western point of the heavens at an altitude of about thirty degrees, thence travelling horizontally towards the south and cast. Its first appearance was that of a ball of fire about affects inches in diameter, of a light green colour, and as it passed through the heavens at a slow pace left a long trail of stars, resembling a comet, which gradually decreased in brightness until the ball only remained, which continued on its course for several seconds. There is no doubt had it been dark instead of daylight it would have shown very brilliantly.

THE GRENPELL MAIL ROBBERY.— Alfred Jones was brought up on remand before the Granfell Bench, on the 14th instant, and, after further evidence had been taken, he was committed to take his trial for mail robbery. He will be tried at the Bathurst Gircuit Court.

THE ABRANTER WAR.—Mr. T. J. # METROPOLITAN INTERCOLONIAL

METROPOLITAN INTERCOLONIAL EXHIBITION.

Thunk was a smaller attendance on Saturday than on any one of the previous five days of the week. The ra we and other anusements no doubt draw sways a large number of persons who would otherwise have been present. But the surcedingly fine weather that we had all the week induced every one to take the earliest opportunity of seeing the great show, and it was acarcely to be expected that the large attendances would be kept up over Saturday. At the concert in the evening, however, there was a large crowd of persons. By the afternoon most of the horses, and a great many of the cattle were removed from the park; and by night time nearly the whole of the live stock was cleared out. That the Exhibition on the whole has been a great success can scarcely be questioned; and it is to be hoped that when the books of the society are audited, it will not only be found that they are quite correct, but also that there is a nice little balance to the society's credit. We have been unable to obtain statistics up to the last day. But the takings for the five days—Mondsy to Priday inclusive amounted to close upon £3000. This represents an attendance of 60,000 persons—an average of 12,000 a day. The attendance, however, was really very much larger. There were all the numbers of the society, the exhibitors, the stowards and judges, and the attendants, admitted free, and these would be the result. For after all the Agricultural Society is only a means to an end, and not an incorporated association which annually declared dividends of so much per cent. besides bonuses. Whatever it gains it disburses again in the shape of prizes, and in expenses consequent upon its great undertakings. Once or twice it has been rather too levish in this way, and found itself with a balance on the wrong side of the ledger. Mature experience, and the increased popularity of the Exhibitions, have enabled it to retrieve somewhat its original position; and, after the present undertaking, it will probably find that it h saste; and these, too, were readily appropriated by the public.

At the request of a number of people whe, owing to the large crewd of visitors, have been unable to inapect the exhibits contained in the building, the executive committee have determined to keep it open for a few days longer. It will be closed on Monday for the ball; but the gates will be open at 2 p.m. for the following four days. Arrangements have also been made for a continuation of the musical festivals in the eventings. Seats will be provided on the central ground floor for a thousand persons.

THE THIRD DAY'S CATTLE SALES AT THE EXHIBITION.

BARIBITION.

THE sales of Saturday commenced at an early hour, and continued until about 4 in the afternoon. Some of the lots reached very high figures, and some were passed in the face of good offers. Lot 281, for instance, Mr. Morion's prize heiter, only a yearling, was run up to 1500 guiness (the last bid from Mr. Ewin, of Ulfadulla); but the owner's reserve being 2000 sovereigns, she was passed in. What Victorian lots were sold, it will be observed, brought excellent prices.

The champion bull, Prince Charlie, a Hestford, changed owners (it is thought by many rather cheeply) for 315 guiness.

owners (it is thought by many rather carely, guineas.

The total of the day's sale, at a rough calculation, amounts to about 5000 guineas; the number of lots (38) averaging each 168 guineas. When the Exhibition sales are added to the numerous once (auction and private) outside, the week's work must reach a figure that will stamp the Motropolitan Show of 1874 as a profitable one to breeders and others that trusted to the Exhibition as a breeders and others that trusted to the Exhibition as a

THE SYDNEY BUNT CLUB.

THE AUTUMN Meeting of the Sydney Hunt Club took place at Mandwick on Saturday last. The weather was beautifully fine, and there were between four and five houses of last the second of the Sydney Hunt. The weather was beautifully fine, and there were between four and five houses of last the second of the Sydney Hunt. St. John and suite servived some time before the warning bell rung for the first race, and remained until the programme was played out. The racing was not of the best, and, with the exception of the Open Handicap and Meinbers' Stakes, the events of the day were without a finish worthy of the name. Gameboy, who was a red-hot favourite for the Hurdle Race, was outpaced by Shakespere, and a protest which was entered against the latter for missing a hurdle was dismissed. Pygmalion, when leading by nearly 300 yards for the Hunt Club Steeplechase, cither bolted into the bush, or his rider mistoch the course; and Sir Watkins being as fat as a whale Vagabond caught him a dozen lengths from home, and beat him sasily at the finish. Shakespere baulkd once at the hurdle which had to be negotiated in order to qualify her for the Ladies' Bag; and Ross, after falling on the siteks, blundered over, and was allowed to start. Mr. E. Palmer was in the saddle, and had it not been for his determined riding she would never have got to the other side. The knocking about she got at the fence put out the rhence for the race, and Shakespers scored a second win rather easily. The Opon Handicap afforded a fine race, and Burwood Maritana, and Westminster finished within half a length r the favourite, Newbold, was only a moderate fourth. Borison made a great show of his opponents in the Metropolitan Steeplechase; and George Mason attracted considerable attention by lesing his temper, and flogging Baron severely. Only three started for the Memeratic basic starts of the Memeratic Stakes, and Newbold, catching Greyskin on the post, a deal-best was recorded, and the money was divided.

THE fellowing communication addressed by Mr. Todd, C.M.G., Superintendent of Telegraphs for South Australia, to the Chief Secretary of that colony, contains the ofer of the representative of the telegraph company in reterence to the proposed reduction of cable charges:—
"Electric Telegraph Department, Chief Office, Adelaide, South Australia, "7th April, 1874.

"Electric Telegraph Department, Chief Office, Adelaide, South Australia,

"Sir,—The offer now submitted by the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company, as per Colonel Glover's telegram, ica follows:—

"Between London and Port Darwin, exclusive of Australian charges, a minimum rate of £3 &c. for 10 words, and &c. dd. for every additional word.

"India and Port Darwin, 38s. for 10 words, and 3s. 10d. for every additional word.

"Corresponding reductions to other countries.
"In comideration of these reduced rates the company ask for a subsidy of £25,000 per annum.

"Colonel Glover's telegram reads that the subsidy will be reduced 100 words for every 100 messages beyond 30,000 messages per annum, irrespective of length. This is probably an error in transmission, and 100 words may be taken as £100. I have asked for message to be repeated.

"At present the company's proportion between Port Darwin and Madras is £3 &s. dd. for 20 words, excluding the transit rates through Java and India. whilst, under the proposed tariff, the company's proportion will be only 30-for 10 words, the extra &s. being the charges made on account of Java and India. The rate between London and Port Darwin would have been £3, but the administrations between India and England have just decided to increase their rate fas.

"I world respectively recommend that Colonel Glover's amended offer be made the basis of negotiations with the other Australian Governments, with a view to its acceptance.

"The adoption of a 10-word minimum rate, and a word by word tariff thereafter, is of itself a great concession, which will undoubtedly lead, with the reduced charges, to an extensive increase of traffic, and remove to a great existent the need now existing for the intervention of packing species.

"The offer closely approximates with the suggestions.

agencies.

"The offer closely approximates with the suggestions advanced in my letter to you of December 4th last, and will, no doubt, meet the views of the Hos Mr. Langton, the Minister administering the Post Office and Telegraph Department in Victoria.

"The following table shows the contribution of each colony, the subsidy being apportioned according to the number of single rate messages transmitted in 1872:—

Colony.	Number of Single Rate Messages in 1872.	Proper-	Subsidy charges now obtaining.

"Should the proposal of the company be agreed to by the other colonies interested, I would suggest that the inland rate on the Port Darwin line in South Australia (as she would be a contributor to the general subsidy) should be, say, 10s. for 10 words, and 8d. for every additional word.

That would be a terrible game, if the country didnet become more attached to the Republic the greaser the efforts to estrange it from that form of government. Indeed what preserves us from adventures is the sentiment which is becoming more and more profound, that the Republic has repaired the disasters of the Empire, restored the finances and freed the territory of France, and that it is now sure of a durable majority and one that is becoming more and more imposing. This is perhaps the first time that in our country a form of government commands a calm, thoughtful, and persistent preference, proof against calumnies, reactions, and changes of opinion, and even against the excesses and faults to which every human cetablishment is subject. The country has at last made up its mind on something, and sticks to it. The Republic hus, therefore, more than de fecto possession; it has roots in the mind, the habits, and above all in the firm, thoughtful, and patient will of the nation; there are no better titles or securities for a government, and it is this, we repeat, that reasures us against the dreams of M. Rouher and his friends; but it is none the less useful to show that, if the prolongation of the Hresident's powers and the combative policy were capable of ruining the Republic, it would not be for the advantage of royalty.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HENLED.

SIR,—In your issue of Tuesday lest there was a paragraph stating that a correspondent had written to you complaining of some shocking cruelty in reference to the horses in an omnibus which conceyed him freen Coogee Bay "yesterday afternoon." This must he re been lest Sunday.

As your correspondent does not specify the omnibus whose horses were thus cruelly treated, many of your readers may be induced to believe that the complaint was made in reference to one of the regular Coogee Bay S. U. O. Co.'s vehicles.

I am in the frequent habit of using this company's omnibuses, and in justice to that company, I beg to say that I have never seen anythine approaching to cruelty exercised towards any horse belonging to them. I have never seen a sore shoulder, or galled wither or girths. The usual drivers, Smith and Pagaley, are very careful of their horses, besides being very steady drivers and civil and obliging men.

The omnibus your correspondent complains of must have been one of the numerous extra once that go to Coogee on Sundays.

At the Exchange, Sydney, on PRIDAY, May 16, 1874, at WOLFE and BADGERY have received instructions from Mesers. R. and S. E. Wyntham to sell by suction, at the above time and place, Their really choice station

gham to sell by auction, at the above time and place, beir really choice station situated on the M-Intyre, and watered most permanently in all seasons by that and the France Rivers. The country consists of rich river flats and abundantly grassed ridges, capable of grazing in all seasons 4000 head of cattle at the least. There are a comfortable tottage, and her suchyards, and a horse paddock of about 1000 acres, and the whole run is narry fereed. With this existion will be seld the beautiful and profitable herd of Herofords now depasturing thereon, consisting of 2000 (more or less) cattle, about 100 of which are very choica breeding cows. The buils on the station are about 16 Herofords, and as follows:—NEW YEAR (eire and dam both importably: 16 breed by Miscas. Loier (of Abber Green) and F. Reynolds (of Tocal), and selected by Mr. B. Wynolksm. About 70 were anved from choice cows at last branding, and some have been sold up to £30 each. The working horses may or may not be taken at a valuation by purchasee.

The auctioneers have much pleasure in placing this station before the public for sale, as they are confident that no more compact, accure, and paying run has been offered for some year; the district is most estable for the rearing of first-class shock; the pasture and water in abundance in all seasons, and the stock; it will be seen from above particulars, are almost a stud herd. From the demand at present existing for Heseford bulls, the purchaser would be able in after years to supply a large number of young cose, salable at high prices; and from the reputation the Mesers. Wyndham bear for their Hereford bullocks, this station must accure a fortune in a few years to any one who would attend to the breeding of the stock. And now that the attend to the breeding of the stock. And now that the foundation is laid, the work would be comparatively easy, and the auctioneers request intending purchasers to inspect the records.
